OUR DEVIL'S CORNER.

A YEARNING.

I'd like to seek the frozen North
And hang around the pole
And dine on icicles on toast
And mid the ice cliffs stroll.

With polar bears and Esquimos
I'd rather exist my lot
Than drag out an existence
Where

Its
So
Blamed
Hot.

Always on the wing—feathers.

"We have n't had a good, solid rain since April," says a northern paper. Neither have we, but we have had quite a number of liquid rains since that time. When water descends in solid form in these parts we call it hail.

A smart young man residing at Whitwell, one of the crowd, by the way, that cut John Thornton's harness and indulged in various other playful antics on the occasion of the recent visit of the Sequachee Dramatic Club to that place, was kicked in the head by a mule the other day. His dome of thought cracked open like an over-ripe watermelon and he was borne unconscious to his home. There his agonized relatives discovered that whatever brains he ever possessed had leaked out through the crack leaving his skull as empty as a dried gourd. His mother, however, with great presence of mind filled the vacant space with a mixture of cornmeal mush and tomato sauce and mended the break with putty, and the youth is now apparently as well as ever.

Swiss At Hohenwald.

Kimmins, July 30.—The Swiss who purchased homes and settled in the vicinity of Hohenwald are wonderfully well pleased with the country. They have built up quite a town and it would not be surprising if they should induce by their favorable reports of the climate and productiveness of this country, others of their countrymen to come South for homes.

Fish Coming.

We are advised by the U. S. Fish Commission that our consignment of fish for Sequachee will soon reach us, but if after the fish are put into the river anybody is mean or wicked enough to destroy them with dynamite we hope every honest man in the county will furnish a boot toe to assist them in putting space between themselves and us.

Mr. C. C. Houts, (Lum) started on his weekly tour to the river Friday for a load of fish. Lum is the fish merchant of the section.

The Mills to the Cotton.

About two years ago the Manufacturers' Record announced that half a dozen leading New England mill companies would shortly begin an investigation, with a view to building large cotton mills in the South. This was generally criticised by New England papers which denied that the mills of that section would build in the South. Since then the Dwight mill has been built at Gadsden at a cost of $500,000, the Massachusetts Mill at Rome at $600,000, the Whittier Mill at Atlanta with 10,000 spindles with the intention of eventually making 40,000; contracts have been signed for a $250,000 mill to be located at Anniston Ala. to be increased in the future to $500,000 by the American Net & Twine Co., of Boston and to-day we give particulars of the commencement of work on a $600,000 mill in Alabama to be built by New England people. Here is an aggregate of about $2,500,000 capital invested in these mills. Half a dozen or more companies are now studying the situation and will build as soon as business resumes its natural conditions. The building of these mills by the oldest and strongest mill companies in New England has had a very marked effect upon New England's sentiment regarding cotton manufacturing in the South. The start has been made and prosperous times will see a very rapid movement in that direction. With a satisfactory settlement of the money question business will quickly revive, and then the southward trend of New England money will steadily increase. —Manufacturers' Record.

Compliments Foster Brown.

A Congressman writing from a New England State to the NEWS says: "I served on the Judiciary Committee with Judge Brown of your district. He is a bright, faithful man and makes an excellent representative. Your people cannot do better than continue him here." Yes, Mr. Brown has proved himself and excellent Representative. He is a warm friend of the NEWS and has proved himself capable of his office.
